

September
October
November
December
January
February
March
April
May
2007-08

Sumit Ganguly

"Structure and Contingency in the Transformation of India's Foreign Policy"

Friday, Feb. 23, 2007

Noon

Mershon Center for International Security Studies
1501 Neil Ave.

See a streaming video of this event. This streaming video requires RealPlayer. If you do not have RealPlayer, you can download it free.

Sumit Ganguly holds the Rabindranath Tagore Chair in Indian Cultures and Civilizations at Indiana University in Bloomington.

Ganguly is author, editor or co-editor of a dozen books on South Asia. His most recent are Fearful Symmetry: India and Pakistan Under the Shadow of Nuclear Weapons (co-authored with Devin Hagerty; Oxford, University of Washington) and More Than Words: U.S.-India Strategic Cooperation Into the 21st Century (co-edited with Brian Shoup and Andrew Scobel; Routledge).

Ganguly's research and writing has been supported by grants from the Asia Foundation, Ford Foundation, Carnegie Corporation of New York and W. Alton Jones Foundation. He serves on the editorial boards of Asian Affairs, Asian Survey, Current History, Journal of Strategic Studies and Security Studies. He is also founding editor of both India Review and Asian Security.

Ganguly is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, New York, and the International Institute of Strategic Studies, London. He is currently at work on a book, India Since 1980, under contract with Cambridge University Press.

Sumit Ganguly
Rabindranath Tagore
Chair in Indian Cultures and Civilizations
Indiana University